Sore Throats and Tobacco. Persons who find that when facing the cold air the result is sore threats are advised to wear respirators, such as are in rather general use in Eagland. Trey are of fine metallic meshes, covered with silk, and are made either to cover the mouth slone or back mouth and nose. For ladies there is what is called a respiratory veil.

and nostrils is stiffened by a layer of this wite gauza, so that the veil may stand away from the mouth and be more comfortable." This appears to be a simple precaution, and the veil could doubtless be easily made, even at home. Of course the doctor is an enemy of tobacco most die ors art), and he informs us that a 'frequent source of sore throat is breathing an atmosphere laden with tobacco smoke, as in the sitting rooms of public houses, certain concert saloous and the like." To smoke is very dangerous for the throat, and the doctor's advice no gentlemen who will smoke is very earnest and, must I say it, very amusing. "The smoker should have a long stemmed pipe in prof rence to any other contrivance, because it renders the smoke cooler by the time it reaches the throat. The next safest thing is a long cigar, not much more than half of which should be used, because the remainder becomes warmer and more loaded with the poissnous products of the combustion. A short pipe is not as safe as a cigar, and a cigarette is the most injurious

Indeed, there is a peculiar condition of the throat produced by tobacco smoking which almost any slave to the practice can observe in himself. It consists in a series of opalescent or milky looking patches on the inside of the corners of the mouch and lips, due to a sort of raising of the outermost layer of the mue us memorane. These spots are known as the patches of smokers." All this looks quite horrible, and doubtless it really is, but the smoker can read it without a shudder. Out say hundred of smokers you will not Smoking must be a bad habit; nobody can deny that; but somehow the smoker goes on, thinks of the very old people he has known and heard of who siways smoked, and most of them he short pipe at thar, and he is not frightened. He acc pts the theories of the doctors, but he knows also the fac s. To tell him to buy a long eigar, which is apt to be expensive and good, and to throw it away after he has smoked but half of it, touches his pocket as well as his appetite and the chances are that he will not obey. The inordinate use of alcoholic liquors is anoth er source of sire throat." Granted; and of many

Wetting Lead Pencils. The ac: of putting a lead pencil to the tongue, to wet it, just before writing, which we notice in so many people, is one of the oddities of which it is hard to give any reason-unless it began in the days when lead pencils were poor er than now, and was continued by exemple in to the next generation. A lead pencil should never by wet. It hardens the lead and rains the pencil. This fact is knows to newspaper men and stenographers. But nearly every one else does wet a pencil before using it. This fac: was definitely settled by a newspaper clerk away down East, Being of a mathematical turn of mind, he escertained by ac usl count that of 50 persons who came into his office to write an advertisemeet or church notice, 49 wet a pencil in their mouths before using it. Now this clerk always uses the b st pere's, cherishing a good one uses the best pere's, cherishing a good one Fauquier, 21 miles from Rectortown station, W. with something of the pride a soldier feels in C. But politeness and business considerations require him to lend his pencil stores of times every day. And often and refused to mark, his feelings would overpower him. Finally he got some cheap per oils and sharp ened them, and kept them to lend. The first person who took up the stock pencil was a drayman, whose breath smelt of onions and whiskey He held the point in his mouth and soaked it for several minutes, while he was torturing himself in the effort to write an advertisement for
